- Solutions
- The book

Defining the problem

Plagiarism and fabrication are not the same

Plagiarism
Nonfiction;
copying sans attribution

Fabrication
Fiction;
making up
people, facts

Fabrication is inexcusable

www.poynter.org www.newsu.org News University is a project of The Poynter Institute funded by the Knight Foundation

Stephen Glass, James Frey's "A Million Little Pieces," Greg Mortenson's Three Cups of Tea, Jonah Lehrer fabricated Bob Dylan quotes

Polling Questions

Have you ever fabricated content?

- Never
- Yes
- Just a little bit

Plagiarism is gray

Questions to consider

- Was it intentional?
- How much plagiarized?
- History of author?

NYTimes Jayson Blair, Jonah Lehrer, Jane Goodall, Senate Majority Floor Leader Vicente Sotto III accused of plagiarizing JFK speech, Harry Potter and Willy the Wizard

Polling Questions

What should the punishment be for plagiarism?

- Re-education
- Termination
- Suspension
- Loss of pay
- A mixture of the above

Plagiarism is serious, not common

Only 4% rise to the level of Jayson Blair

Editor of a major metro
daily, 2005

“We believe plagiarism is among journalism’s most serious professional breaches, if not the single most grave thing.”

Plagiarism cases

Polling Questions

What are common excuses are given for plagiarism and fabrication?

- Mistake
- Job pressure
- Didn't know was wrong
- Everyone does it
- All of the above

Key findings

Of committee research cases

- Plagiarists blame pressure
- Plagiarists at big papers blame competition
- Inadequate rules a problem
- No evidence problem is greater among inexperienced v. veteran or small v. large organizations

No. 1 solution

Attribute everything!

- Use caution when cutting/pasting
- Adjust note-taking to ensure sourcing survives notes/drafts

Online

- Linking to original source isn't a courtesy, it's attribution
- Links to sources online profiles, websites helps verify real
- Absence of links should be a flag
- Fear of leaving site no excuse
- Look at workflow so digital not afterthought
- Look at web tools like Storify or Spundge

Polling Questions

Should press releases be attributed?

- Yes
- No

Polling Questions

Should press releases be attributed?

- Yes
- No

National survey of journalists by Norman Lewis, University of Florida, 2011

Newsroom policies

Often clear that plagiarism is wrong, but do not

- Outline prevention steps or policies on sourcing and attribution
- Spell out how the news organization will deal with an incident or discipline an offender

Good ones should

- Be clear there is a price
- Share policy widely and confront incidents with openness
- Establish random spot-checks of reporters' sources
- Specify discipline: Ex, plagiarism judged by severity; fabrication always dismissal
- Treat everyone equally

Price shouldn't just be to person, but should explain impact on individual and

Prevention

Companies should

- Encourage video or audio of interviews
- Require reporters to discuss unnamed sources with at least one editor
- Make digital reporters link to material that will confirm sources' identities
- Editors should challenge and check digital material

Hints there's a problem

Good editing can catch some cases

- No or sparse attribution
- Change in voice
- Writing beyond skill level
- Perfect source, perfect quote, perfect detail

Electronic resources

- Simple web search can reveal some cases of plagiarism
- Several programs for purchase
- Searching for people, organizations online can help fabrication

LK note: perhaps touch on electronic resources for newsrooms/educators for detecting plagiarism?

TS: If you don't think it will be a problem, I'd rather not. I can say there are various companies selling anti-plagiarism software, but I really don't want to advocate one or list anything because I'm not an expert in this area.
